

Lamboo's Commitment to Sustainability

Lamboo, Inc. is a value-based company that is committed to environmental, social and economic sustainability through transparent and verifiable systems. In partnership with The Forest Trust (www.tft-forests.org), we ensure that we source our bamboo from sustainably managed plantations. We inspect, audit and verify throughout our supply chain to ensure that manufacturing, distribution and product integration meets our high specifications for sustainability and performance.

Our brand, reputation and leading market position is important to us. We know this valued position is based on a sophisticated and growing demand for superior products that deliver outstanding performance, while respecting our planet and our neighbors. Accordingly, we can verify and demonstrate the rigorous steps we employ to ensure sustainability throughout the life cycle of all Lamboo product lines, including our impact in the communities where we work.

The performance, strength and aesthetic characteristics of Lamboo products are unmatched in the industry. We are also passionate about ensuring our values are integrated throughout our supply chain. From qualification for LEED credits in the US, to ASTM certifications for architectural and engineering applications and to related certifications in the aviation and maritime sectors, Lamboo constantly invests in research to maintain our leadership position that keeps Lamboo at the forefront of sustainability and performance.

A number of bamboo product manufacturers have chosen to use Forest Stewardship Council (FSC) certification as a demonstration of sustainability. However, FSC was designed for timber forests and not bamboo grass plantations. Accordingly, Lamboo has chosen to go above and beyond FSC, and utilizes the global expertise of The Forest Trust to maintain a transparent system to ensure we obtain our bamboo from sustainably managed sources. Further, we use this system to verify that our manufacturing and distribution structures achieve the highest levels of sustainability.

Our values drive us to work in partnership to achieve genuine sustainable development that will leave the world a better place for future generations. The very nature of our products suggest our values to be a force for positive change, and we are committed to long-term environmental, social and economic benefits for all our local communities and the world at large.
